

PhD at University of Malta

27/04/2016

I have taken up full time PhD at University of Malta, in the Faculty of Education. This is hugely exciting and my title is 'Designing Smart City Learning'. I've reproduced a short excerpt from the proposal, plus included proposal viva slides and pdf of full proposal here. I'm developing an evaluation system based in theory (connectivism and networked learning pedagogy/epistemology). The idea is to create something which can aid the development lifecycle of learning design and content in relation to learning mobile application design and development and even impact urban planning for technology infrastructure and provision.