

The Art and Science of Survival

10/09/2013

I like Blurb books. I've made a few, but my favourite is a collection of poems created to match images initially grouped only because they 'looked good together'. The idea was to start with the image, then think of a matching title, then write the poem. As an experiment in creating a collection of work which is connected, and with an overall identity - much like an album of songs - it works well. Check out the whole book, using the online preview over at Blurb: <http://www.blurb.com/books/2158804-the-art-and-science-of-survival>